Source the Food app from Source Local Foods

Source the Food App, available for iPhone or Android, tracks the source and destination of locally produced foods. The app is a product of Source Local Foods, a distributor of food from local producers to wholesale food buyers throughout Colorado. The app gives real-time information on local food – from where the product is being served to the mileage used to transport it there. It also provides background information on suppliers, including farmers, dairy operations, and food manufacturers. Read more.
